Hole Food Rescue Thanks You!

We wanted to publicly thank all of our community partners who've volunteered their time and made our summer lunch program incredibly successful. In collaboration with One22, participating summer camps, and YOUR volunteer hours, we have prepared over 1500 lunches and have fed 80 local children.

Buckrail - JACKSON, WY – Since 2013, Hole Food Rescue has been diverting excess food from local retailers to serve thousands of in-need community members each week. HFR is run by volunteers who pick up donated food from food donors, bring it to their food sorting facility, organize it, and deliver tailored food boxes to local recipient organizations. This summer, HFR collaborated with One22 to provide free, nutritious lunches to One22's summer camp scholarship recipients. HFR wants to thank all the volunteers, businesses, and organizations who helped with this effort.

Below is a message from the HFR Team:

Thank you to all the groups that volunteer their time to help with the Summer Lunch Program. These businesses & organizations have been preparing 20-50 lunches five days a week throughout the summer. Children and families receiving scholarships through One22 are able to enjoy their camp activities knowing they have a nutritious lunch every day.

Thank You for the Rosaries!

Opening the box of donations was like peeking into a treasure chest from a Spanish galleon—sparkling jewels of all colors with silver and gold chains and crucifixes. Altogether, 50 rosaries were collected as well as some lovely sacramentals. One woman contributed her crystalline First Communion rosary hoping a child could have it. There was a rosary carved from Palestine olive wood, one brought from Medjugorje, a rose-scented pink rosary from the Vatican, one that was hand-beaded by a woman for her grandmother's funeral, and a number hand-knotted in colorful cotton. There were tremendous stories and love in that donation box.

I mailed the treasures to the Tucson Oblates of the Sisters of Perpetual Adoration, who volunteer at the Benedictine Monastery, and I am passing back their heartfelt thanks. These gifts, still warm with your prayers, will be accompanying refugees in some very difficult situations. After escaping so much violence, the people are in absolute awe of the love they have been shown at the monastery.

An update on the monastery: The Benedictine Monastery in Tucson was sold last year and the Sisters of Perpetual Adoration returned to their mother house in Missouri. However, the property developer allowed Catholic Social Services to utilize the monastery as a shelter for asylum-seekers from Mexico and Central America until his new construction could begin. Thus, from October 2018 through July 2019, the monastery gave temporary sanctuary to more than 14,000 refugees through the volunteer efforts of about 500 Tucsonans. This August the operation was moved to a government facility but is still run by Catholic Social Services through its agency called Casa Alitas (House of Wings).

*¡Muchas Gracias!

Diocese of Cheyenne Reports Three New Credible Wyoming Child Abuse Allegations Against Retired Bishop Hart

In July and August of 2018, the Diocese of Cheyenne announced that it had conducted canonical investigations and concluded that there was substantiated evidence that retired Bishop Joseph Hart had abused three boys in Wyoming. Since those announcements, the Diocese received allegations regarding three new individuals that they, too, were sexually abused by Bishop Hart in the 1970's and 1980's. The allegations have been reported to the civil authorities, and the Diocese of Cheyenne has cooperated fully with the police.

In June 2019 the U.S. Catholic Bishops approved Directives to implement Vos estis lux mundi ('You are the light of the world'), which authorizes the Metropolitan Archbishop to oversee the investigation of allegations against bishops. However, the Diocese of Cheyenne had previously been authorized by the Holy See to investigate allegations against Bishop Hart and had already begun to investigate the new allegations. Upon consultation with the Holy See, Bishop Steven Biegler was directed to complete the investigation.

Therefore, the diocese completed its canonical investigations which included asking Bishop Hart for an interview to respond to the accusation. He declined to be interviewed. The results of the investigation were given to the Diocesan Review Board, which found the three allegations credible and substantiated. Then the diocese forwarded the results to the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith for its action. The Apostolic Nuncio, Archbishop Aquila of Denver and Bishop Johnston of Kansas City-St. Joseph were sent copies of the report.

Bishop Steven Biegler reiterated that the Catholic Church is committed to respond promptly and with justice to accusations of sexual abuse. He said, "I applaud the victims who have come forward to report sexual abuse to the police or the Church. Your courageous action helps us to address these terrible crimes, and your example encourages other victims to find their voice. As the Church, we promise to protect the most vulnerable and to accompany those who have been harmed on a journey of healing." Bishop Steven asks for prayers for all victims, their family members, and all Church or public officials involved in this matter.

If anyone has suffered sexual abuse, contact the local law enforcement agency or the Department of Family Services. For further assistance, contact Dorene McIntyre at the Diocese of Cheyenne, 307-638-1530 or the Diocesan Victim Assistance Coordinator, Mary Adams at 307-220-0485.

The Diocese of Cheyenne is providing this statement in accord with its obligations under the USCCB Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People that calls for dioceses to be "transparent in communicating with the public about the sexual abuse of minors by clergy" (Article 7) and under the diocese's own norms which specifies that "a public announcement will be made to the diocese as a whole and to the general public" after an "accusation has been investigated and determined to be credible" (Article XI).
